President's Report

The Cold Spring Harbor Fish Hatchery & Aquarium, Inc. continues to demonstrate its 30 year commitment in bringing our innovative and informative environmental education programs to our community. We exhibit and display a wide diversity of NY State aquatic and terrestrial wildlife species and provide a haven for some endangered animals. Continuing the 120 year old process of hand-raising and growing trout, we maintain a traditional process that otherwise would become a lost art. The Hatchery reaches out to our community for support in our goals to encourage environmental education training programs, provide live exhibits, propagation of trout, and preservation of endangered turtles and amphibians. As a result of community support, we are able to provide these unique services and educational programs to Long Islanders and wider Metro New York community.

Looking back at this past year's accomplishments, I am glad to report that despite the current economic hardships and challenges, the Hatchery Staff and active Board Members successfully achieved our short-term goals and kept our finances on solid ground. The Hatchery has expanded the number and diversity of educational, special environmental events, fundraising, festival and fishing activities. We've improved our website, www.CSHFHA.org, and opened a new Facebook page.

President's Report

Looking forward to Fiscal Year 2011 we will continue to increase our environmental educational programs, develop new and exciting live fish, reptile and amphibian exhibits, grow more trout for our stocking program, and develop special events for community involvement. One of our goals is to erect an outdoor educational pavilion to better serve the public. As with all not-for-profit establishments, we seek increased public financial support through event attendance and greater awareness in what we have to offer. Our goal is to be 'the' environmental activities center for our local community while we reach out to those beyond the Long Island borders.

Sincerely,

Mark Trotter

President, Board of Trustees

A generous grant from The National Grid Foundation provided scholarships for students to visit the Hatchery.

Annual Giving 2010

The Mather Fund

The Hatchery's Mather Fund is designed to invite major annual gifts from business, corporate, and foundation donors in support of our environmental education programs.

The Hatchling Society

The Hatchling Society invites annual gifts of $1,000 or more from individuals offering special support for our environmental education programs. Each creature in our collections, from birth throughout life, helps to delight and inform our visitors. The Society thus recognizes, in both name and mission, the joys of discovery and ingenuity in the Hatchery's natural world.

Director's Report

The past two years have been years of multiple challenges. The national, state, and local economies have been hit with many changes. This decline in the economy has affected the Hatchery in many ways. Many plans for the future have become just that “plans for the future”. Attracting grant money from any source has been becoming harder and harder as foundations see their earnings decline and grants that once were reliable from New York State have declined in total giving with increased uncertainty of how those grants will eventually play out. Through all this, however, the Hatchery remains on a strong footing thanks to many new and long term supporters including many individuals, families, members of the Board of Trustees and foundations who continue to see that this Hatchery is a great benefit to the local community and Long Island in general. There is no place where one can go see the variety of live freshwater life as is in our displays. Where else can you go to see fish such as longnose gars, lake sturgeon, eastern spiny softshell turtles and many other species that are either endangered, threatened, or just plain hard to see in the wilds of New York. New in 2010 is our lake trout and landlocked Atlantic salmon exhibit. These species have not been displayed here for almost 15 years. Our New York Stream Exhibit contains species of fish that even seasoned anglers never see. We display every species of turtle found in our large state as well as most of the aquatic amphibians. These live exhibits allow our thousands of visitors a chance to see the diversity of life that exists in our state that they would not be able to see if not for us and the effort that has gone into obtaining, maintaining, housing and keeping these animals alive. Our spring salamanders, for example, have been here since 1986 and have definitely changed my idea of how long many species of small animals are capable of living.

These live collections also are used during our many educational programs to again try to instill in young people what diversity of life exists fairly close to the children's own houses and communities.

Our trout continue to play an important role at this Hatchery. Not only do the have educational value in "Trout in the Classroom", "Trout in the City", and in brook trout restoration in several Long Island streams, they continue to be a reliable source of income that goes into supporting the "Hatchery & Aquarium" in general.

One can only guess as to what the future and the economy brings but I hope that people from all over Long Island and elsewhere will continue to support us and be as generous as they can afford to be. I have great hope that our planned for education/picnic pavilion will finally get funding so that in 2011 we can start that construction. This pavilion will be used during the summer camps, weekend programs as well as the possibility of birthday parties.

I'm glad that the Hatchery has made it through the past tough two years and sincerely hope that 2011 and beyond will be better.

Sincerely,

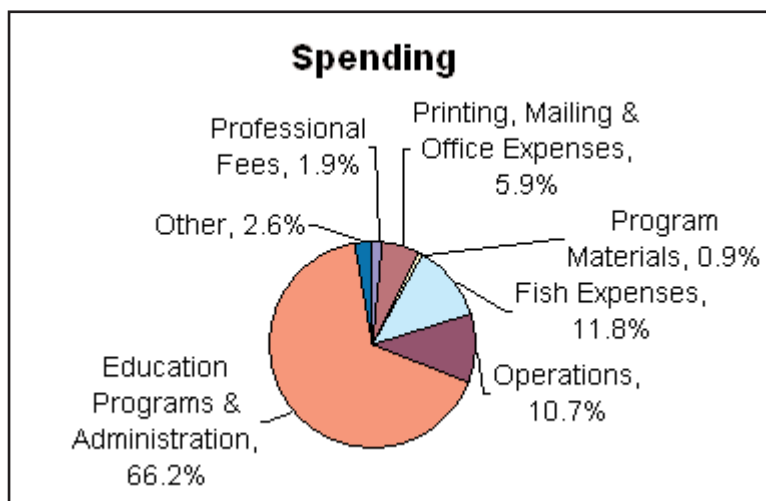

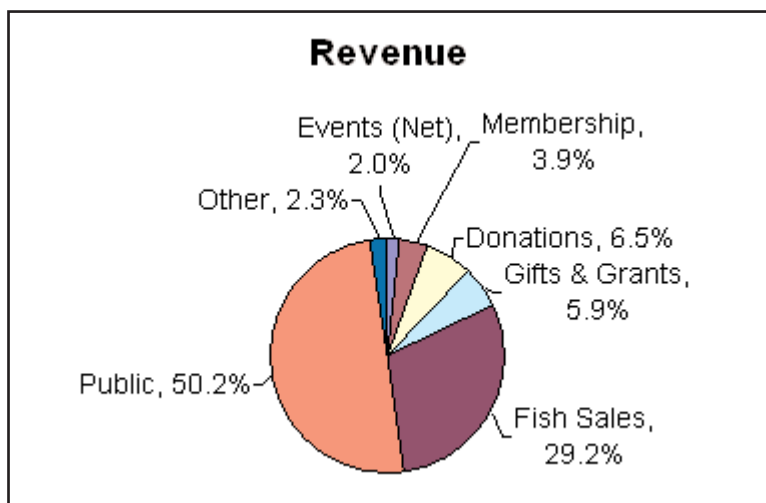

Norman Soule
